Paying Teller of the First National Bank Short in His Accounts_Mayor Trout Back at His Post_State News.

ROANOKE, VA., Oct. 6,-Special.-Roanoke has added another murder to her list of crimes and casualties. The victim is Noel C. Dyer, a clerk in the car record office of the Norfolk and Western rallroad, and the murderer D. H. Mitchell, a merchant doing business at 511 Franklin

The circumstances are as follows: Dyer, who owed Mitchell for groceries, stepped into the latter's store this morning to ask about some remarks he had been informed the latter was circulating about him. What occurred no one but Mitchell knows. In a minute or two after entering, Dyer was seen to reel out into the street, the blood streaming from a gash in his neck, and staggering in the direction of his home, a short distance away. Friends met him just as he started to fall, picked him up and carried him into the store of Mr. A. T. Pollard, where he bled to death in twenty minutes, before a doctor could reach his side.

Reed, a carriage manufacturer who helped carry Dyer into the store hastened to Mitchell's store. He was closing the door, but on Mr. Reed's demand that he accompany him to the jail he did so without offering any objection, and was locked up. Dr. Staples summoned a coroner's jury, who have the case in charge. Dyer, before he lost speech, charged Mitchell with cutting his throat, and said he did not have so much as a pen knife with which to defend his life. Mitchell was seen by a reporter in the jail, and said that Dyer, after call-ing him a liar, struck him twice in the face and then shoved a show-case against him; that he aimed to cut Dyer in the arm, but his hand, after striking the arm, glanced, and the knife entered the neck. Dyer has a cut about three inches long on the arm, and Mitchell a bruise his cheek. Dyer leaves a wife and a young child.

Quite a flutter was created in financial circles here to-day by a report which obtained circulation that Fleming Loving, paying teller of the First National Bank, was short in his accounts and had fled the town. Your correspondent applied to one of the officials of the bank for a confirmation or denial of the report, and was told that the teller was off on a drunk, and that his books were straight It has transpired since, however, that this was said only to throw the news gatherer off the track, for by the report of the accounting committee, Loving is short $2,055.75.

The committee, in accordance with instructions from the Treasury Department on the first of the month, counted the cash last night. Several bags of silver in the vault were discovered to be short of the amounts endorsed upon the tags, and a discrepancy of $1,000 on hand was discovered. When asked about this, he exhibited considerable uneasiness, but claimed he made a mistake in his additions.

President Trout reprimanded him and said the books must be straightened up this morning. Loving went home and told his wife that, owing to mistakes he had made, he would be brought abo $1,000 short in the bank, and feared to the officials would make trouble for him. He came down town, drew several checks obtained the money on them, and left the city, telling no one his destination Thomas, the city treasurer, and G. B. Thomas, his brother, are Lov ing's securities, and will make the shortage good at once.

Trout resumed his duties as mayor this evening.

WEST VIRGINIANS WON.

THE WINNING RUN SCORED IN THE NINTH INNING YESTERDAY.

The S'auutons and Charlestons Gave a Beautiful Exhibition of the National Game to a Small Crowd.

The game yesterday afternoon between the lads from West Virginia and the youngsters from Augusta county was won in the ninth inning by the Charleston team. No two base-ball organizations seen on a Richmond diamond are more evenly matched than the Charlestons and the Stauntons, and yesterday they gave a splendid exhibition of the national game. The crowd present was not a large one, but enthusiastic, and were unpartisan in their criticisms as well in their applause. By 5 o'clock the bleacheries were undesirable, the cold wind making matters rather unpleasant. The afternoon was a dismal one anyhow, and as soon as it began to grow dark the diamond was about as dismal a looking place as can well be imagined.

Calliflower, with an Old-Market expression of countenance, was in the box for the Augusta men, and Mr. O'Hagen, from the same district of France as Monsieur O'Rourke, posed as the Man With the Iron Mask. The piece of sweet pickle pitched Mask. The piece of sweet pictale pictale a nice, even game, and got up good speed with his left arm. Bradley, who was out in right field the day before, graced the box for the Charlestons, and did good work with his left-arm twirlings. He was caught by Jones in a first-class manner. The Charlestons, as in the game the The Charlestons, as in the game the day before, began the first in a very promising manner, but failed to get around the bases, and when the Staun-tons finally faced the pitcher they went out in the one, two, three order. In the second, however, they were more fortu-nate, Calliflower sending a hit over Tru-by's head. He advanced to third on Hoffman's single to right, and went leisurely across the plate when Jones made a wild throw to second, attempting to cut off

Hoffman. Then matters went peacefully along un-til the fifth, when the Charlestons made another desperate attempt to score. Lipop would have done so, but falled to touch third. After Conover had gone out at first, Lipop, who appeared here last year with the University team, received his base on called balls. A passed ball— O'Hagen's only one-put him on second, and Elake's beautiful two-bagger drove him across the plate. He had "oceans of time," but carelessly passed over third without touching the bag. Umpire Kain promptly and properly declared him out. In the first half of the sixth the Charles-

The Charlestons began the seventh by Lipop's going out at second, after finding Calliflower for a base hit, and putting Gilman on first on a "fielder's choice." Truby's base on balls advanced him, and A. W. Bradley's two-bagger scored the run. The Stauntons in their half went out, one, two, three.

The West Virginias failed to score in their half of the eighth, and the Stauntons jumped in and tied the score Johnson went to first on called balls Hodge, also, receiving his base advanced the appolo third baseman, and Calli-flower's single sent him across the plate, tleing the score.

The winning run was made by Blake, who received his base on balls, advanced to second on Gilman's base on balls; went to third on a sacrifice, and crossed the plate on the same kind of a hit. Recapitulation—Cases under treatment. 102; discharged, 64; died, 15. Total, 181. Ratio of mortality, 8.3 per cent.
The death of Mrs. Talkerson on Jekyl Island this morning was one of peculiar sadness. She leaves an infant only a contract of the burth occurring the day few days old, its birth occurring the day after she was stricken with the yellowfever. The increase in cases sustains the assertion repeatedly wired by the Morning News correspondent that hardly the half had been told in regard to the number of cases here. There are at least twenty-five to fifty more cases yet undiagnosed that should be classed as yel low-fever, and when the committee upproven a fact. Drs. Booth and Wall are out by invitation of Dr. Davis and under instructions of Surgeon Murray and the health board, investigating Dr. Davis' patients. They will also visit he patients of the two colored physicians. These three have over 150 cases listed as malarial. The general opinion among the surgeons and health board is that seventy-five of them will be positively proven genuine yellow-fever cases. This ill further substantiate the statements frequently wired by the News corres edent that a vast number of cases here were not properly reported. A great majority of these are negroes and light attacks. Surgeon Murray returned from the detention camp to-night, where was in consultation with Surgeon rter. Further and more complete arrangements were made to fight the disease in this section. Drs. Booth and Wall reinforced Surgeons Murray and Faget, and the local physicians here place the authorities on about an equal footing with the epidemic. The ratio of mortality will be kept down, although the disease is very stated.

The Washington Press Club has a correspondent en route for Brunswick. He will be welcomed by the local men. Discussion here, at Jesup and at other places over the governmental powers when an epidemic breaks out caused the Morning News correspondent to investi-gate the matter. The investigation proves that Surgeon Murray's power at Jesup, Brurswick, and any suspected place in this section is absolute. So completely has Congress, by an act passed February 15th, 1893, vested him with authority that he can, if necessary, stop the church from holding services, force the entire population, including newspaper men, ou of the infected district, stop the courts and the sale of merchandise or goods of any character. A word from him will call the government to his support in enforcing these laws. Being a man of good, but firm judgment, he has not used his power in Jesup or Brunswick, and has kindly allowed the local authorities in both places to retain control of their municipali-ites, but this action is due, not to the lack of authority, but because he saw no necessity of taking absolute control, the Jesup and Brunswick authorities working in complete harmony with him to accomplish any good results that might be ob

THE HENICO MURDER CASE. Several Witnesses Testify us to the Alleged Drowning and Tell-Tale Foat

The trial of Philip Norman Nicholas charged with the murder of James Mills the Circuit Court of Henrico yesterday The following jury was selected to hear the case: W. N. Ford, J. W. Taylor, G. W. Bottoms, Hill Carter, Hugh D. Smith, Joseph Turner, John Warriner, George Lyne, Houston Johnson, H. C. Williard, W. T. Johnson and L. L. Gunn.

large, the whites largely predominating The finding of the bodies by the diver the cause of death by drowning and the jurisdiction of the scene of the alleg murder were testified to, and the ne witness called was Siley Alley, who told the finding of the boat, the axes a hatchet, the tracks of the three men the river banks, and the bee tree and t auger holes. A hatchet, lock, corn-stoppers and pocket knife, and a piece netting were shown the witness a identified as the same things he found the boat. He was cross-examined by t defence, but little change was made his evidence. W. F. Adams told about the prison asking about the boat, and how h (Adams) told Nicholas to go ahead an use it. Joe Bruining next testific to being owner of the boa and identified the boat Isaac Alle stated how Wilkinson was swimming and about finding the stuff in the boat. Squire E. T. Rugg enumerated the particulars of the drowning, and the arres of the prisoner. He identified the cloth-ing of the deal men.

At the afternoon session Dr. Gaskins testified as being in the boat the day be-fore, and there being no holes in it at that time. Joseph Bruining, owner the boat, stated that he usually k the boat locked to the bank, and that a false key was evidently used. William Myer, working in the field, eighty feet from the scene of the drowning, did not see any one cross the field that day. B. W. Johnson said he had been bathing with Wilkinson frequently and that he (Wilkinson) could not swim.

The trial will be resumed at 10 A. M. this morning, and the first witness will be the woman in the case.

A PLEASING PERFORMANCE. 'The Straight Tip" at the Academy is Worth the While of Theatre-Goers.

There was quite a large audience at the Acadimy last evening to witness the up-to-date racing comedy, "A Straight Tip," and the audience filed out of the playhouse a few moments before 11 o'clock well pleased with the performance. The attraction is built on farce-comedy lines, and has barely enough plot to keep it together. Only enough is needed to give those in the cast a chance of presenting their specialities, and the comedians an opportunity of repeating their more or less amusing "gags," but, withal, there is given in the second act a fairly good representation of a race track book so and has barely enough plot representation of a race track, book-maker's place, and the characters to seen about such an establishment. There is the young sport, with clothes loud enough to be heard in Hong Kong, with a sure tip; there is the Irishman, who has "fringe on his face" and more brogue than money; there is the countryman, who like the jolly little cetrich, thinks he "knows it all;" there is the "tout," who knows a sure thing, and is ready to bet every cent he's got-but he hasn't any; there are the dizzy blonde-haired girls with their Sixth-avenue expressions of countenance, who are playing the favorite; there is the book-maker, with a diamond as big as the Kooh-l noor, and a faculty of calculating odds quicker than a diable can run; and there are the individuals which go to make a racing track a splendid place to study people. The characters are somewhat overdrawn, but it's a license of farce-comedy to exaggerate, and no one can find fault on that score. no one can find fault on that score.

Highest of all in Leavening Power .- Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Taking the specialties as z whole, they are cleverly done. Unfortunately Richmond has had quite a number of farce-comedies already this season, and the songs that should take and be applicated have been "done to death." The Academy habitues have heard the sad story of "Little Johnny Dugan," they have littened with tearful even about "the Girl little and the carful even about "the Girl." listened with tearful eyes about "the Girl I left behind;" they have heard that rath er inelegant ditty euphoniously called "Do, Do, My Huckleberry, Do," and they have heard not a few parodies on "After the Ball," but, as was before said, take the specialties of last evening as a whole, and they are catchy and cleverly done. Flora Irvin, fascinating and pretty, with a thorough appreciation of the duties of the soubrette, sings charmingly, and her song "You Did That," is novel and ineresting. Berte Coote sings well, and does cleverly except in the first act, where he might with advantage, cut some of that "drama imitation," and Bessie Tannehill received repeated encores for her song to the bass fiddler. John Keefe relates vocally the "Jay's Experiences," in a manner that pleases, and the quartette are not bad by any matter of means. In the third act, is a butter-fly dance that is worth traveling to witness. It is a revelation to Richmonders. Nothing like it has before been seen here, and it has a Loie Fuller catchiness about it that draws forth the most spontaneous and enthusiastic applause. Miss Julie Kinsley, who executes it, is graceful and bewitching and the effects that are wrought from the folds of her dress, while they whirl about under the glare of the calclum are bewilderingly beautiful.

Take the play as a whole and it is a success. The first act drags a little, but the second and third go like a flash, and there is enough fun crowded into them, and enough bright songs sung and dances executed, to cure a man of a six months' eas of dyspensia. There will be a matinee this afternoon, and the engagement ends with to-night's performance.

Senator Eppa Hunton and Hon Rebert C. Kent spoke here last night on the issues of the day, Mr. W. H. Gravely, of the Populist party, also spoke.

The Democracy is somewhat divided in Washington county over the Legislative candidates. There is a good deal of disastisfaction over the methods pursued at the Abingdon convention, which nominates the contract of the contr nated Messrs. Kindrick and T nated Messis. Khadrick and Tomnay for the General Assembly, and Messas 1. D. Imboden and Robert Gray have been announced as Independent candidates. There will be a lively race, no deobt, but it is the habit of the Democrats of old Washington to stick to the nominess-ween though they may be a lively even though they may be a little irrer
